Cancers are scary to many people. Several cancers are especially common in Asians, and besides prevention, early diagnosis is the next important step to obtain the best possible results from treatments. We are fortunate that Andy Chang, MD, an expert clinician who is passionate about patient care, will share his expertise on what cancers we should screen for in this upcoming community lecture. Please come and join us to learn more. This is a free and bilingual (English/Cantonese) lecture. All are welcome.
